Abraham Lincoln quoted Jesus when he gave his famous "house divided" speech before the Republican State Convention in Springfield, Illinois, on June 16, 1858. He went on to win the Presidency against Democrat Stephen A. Douglas. Lincoln's speech was controversial when he said it. Yet it was clearly prophetic because of the looming Civil War that was to literally tear the nation apart during ...

Every time preachers say, “Jesus said there’s no marriage in heaven,” they are misquoting Jesus. They are putting words into his mouth that he did not say. That’s not right. Please, don’t make Jesus say something he simply didn’t say. On your second point: Romans 7:2-3 must be read in context, or we’ll miss the point.

The biblical story is all about this sad reality. The truth is killed at the place of the skull. That place "Golgotha" sits at the top of 33 vertibral column. That is why Jesus was 33 years old when he was crucified. If you understand the story you would realize its all about truth being killed and give us Barabas the lie. What is evident is that unless humanity can change this degenerate ...
